

Obituary

Born: Thursday, March 27, 1930

Died: Monday, April 8, 2019

Nancy Lou Degitz Warner, 89, passed away at The Hearth at Stones Crossing in Greenwood, IN the morning of April 8, 2019, preceded by her husband of almost 60 years, Glenn D. Warner, and her siblings, Tom, Jim, Jeanette, Joe, and Marjorie. Born in Ft. Wayne, IN on March 27, 1930, Glenn and Nancy got married on November 12, 1949, while Glenn was a student at Purdue University. Upon graduation, they packed up and headed to Long Beach, California for Glenn to work for the California Highway Department. After being away from family, they decided it was time to head back to the Midwest, relocating to Mattoon, Illinois, and then soon settling into the Southport area in Indianapolis, where they built a home and raised their wonderful family together. Nancy was known as a wonderful wife, mother, grandmother and great-grandmother, neighbor, friend, and caregiver. Nancy was known and will be remembered by everyone who knew her for her many funny stories, spunky personality, strong Catholic faith, incredible cooking and baking skills, and caring deeply for her family, long-standing friends, and everyone around her. She always taught us to be kind and loving to one another, to "always be a good person," and to ask Jesus and Mary for help in hard times.
